STUDENT HIGHLIGHTS

Research & Outcomes:

SPT's Anndee Neuman ('22) and Trevor Staples ('21)

Trevor and Anndee are headed to 3 National Pro Bono Network conferences this semester to present on a new data-collecting system, FOTO, and how it has been implemented in our student-run Midvale Pro Bono Clinic. At these conferences, they will be presenting on FOTO in the hopes that Physical Therapy programs nation-wide will also add FOTO in their pro bono clinics as well. With greater utilization of this system, clinics across the nation will be able to facilitate learning and optimize research through the sharing of outcomes.

Congratulations to these two on pioneering such an important project and giving our Pro Bono Board national recognition!

Pro Bono Consortium: Trevor Staples (pictured above) and Avery Alexander ('22)

The University of Utah's Pro Bono Board is now part of the Mountain West Pro Bono Consortium which was recently added to the Pro Bono network. This group will help connect Physical Therapy Schools in the mountain west region. Regular communication with other schools and clinics will help our students develop more effective clinic management strategies by sharing ideas and resources.

A huge thank you to these two for expanding the current network we're part of and striving to make our clinics the best they can be!
