On October 20th, the student-run pro bono board hosted the Third Annual Bocce Ball Tournament at Fairmont Park. This event allowed our local community members and clinic volunteers to come together and enjoy a day of food, fun, and friendly competition while raising money to support our clinic. Thanks to our generous donors, a silent auction was held to help us to gain funding for new supplies and equipment for use in the clinic. This year we established a goal to raise appropriate funding to allow us to purchase iPads for more efficient distribution and collection of patient outcome measures. With the combined support of local donations and those who participated in the auction, we were able to meet our goal and are excited to implement the new technology into the clinical setting.

Congratulations to the 2018 Tournament Winners!

An Extra Thank You To Our Opportunity Donors for Their Donations in Support of Our Clinic!
Our pro bono clinic was represented at the Midvale Health Fair which was held at the Midvale Senior Center this October. First and second year physical therapy students volunteered their time to advertise the pro bono clinic as well as provide free balance and fall risk screenings to local seniors in the community. Physical therapy students had the opportunity to provide patient education on balance as well as recommend areas to access free classes in the community to stay active. Community members were given a physical therapy screening questionnaire and fall risk questionnaire to complete. In addition, our students were able to provide hands on skills to 12 community members. This included an assessment of balance via conduction of two outcome measures, the Berg Balance Test and the 8 Foot Up and Go Test. Overall, our students were able to educate about 20 individuals and refer 8 of them to the pro bono clinic. We found this year to be a success and look forward to helping these individuals with the services we can offer.
